Cons

Absence of Official Website

The business currently lacks a dedicated official website, forcing reliance solely on third-party aggregators and social media platforms.

Evidence: Website inspection shows websiteExists is false and status is not_available.
Priority: high
Recommended action: Develop a dedicated official website to own the digital customer relationship and showcase menus and reservation links directly.
Expected impact: Reduces dependency on aggregator commissions and improves direct booking conversions.

Improvements

Launch a Dedicated Digital Storefront

Romeo Lane currently has no website, missing out on direct customer table reservations, direct brand presentation, and organic search traffic.

Evidence: Website inspection status is not_available and research confirms reliance on platforms like Zomato, Swiggy, and Instagram.
Priority: high
Recommended action: Build a responsive website featuring home, menu, ambiance gallery, events, and table reservation pages.
Expected impact: Increases direct bookings and establishes an independent brand hub online.

Implement Online Table Reservation System

Customers looking to book a table must navigate through various external third-party dining apps rather than booking directly.

Evidence: Research indicates bookings are handled via third-party platforms like Swiggy Dineout and District.

Priority: high
Recommended action: Integrate a direct table booking widget prominently in the header and footer of the new website.
Expected impact: Streamlines user experience and captures high-intent diners directly.

Optimize for Local Search and Schema

Without a website, local search visibility depends completely on external profiles, limiting control over search snippets and local SEO authority.

Evidence: No website URL exists to host local business schema markup or target specific regional keywords.
Priority: medium
Recommended action: Implement local schema markup with exact address, operating hours, and contact details on a new website.
Expected impact: Improves ranking for local queries such as 'best restaurant and bar in Zirakpur'.
